

THE ICE RINK

Left, and below: Like tennis courts, ice rinks are large, "long-span" structures. To freeze the water, they must have complicated—and therefore expensive—mechanical systems. It is very tough to get zoning approvals for large accessory structures, unless the estate has a lot of acreage. Philip Clark, Architect, of Claris Construction designed this private ice rink to sit well proportionally on the land.

PHOTOS BY JASON KAUMEYER/J. KAUMEYER PHOTOGRAPHY